Britain is in the grip of UNCONTROLLABLE ORGANISATIONS

THERE IS a growing feeling among people that this country is no longer under our control. The majority of the British people want to keep the Pound and retain control of our country. Yet unseen forces are taking us deeper into the EU. There is a desire among the public to restore the death penalty, give severe sentences to violent criminals and bring discipline back into our schools. But we all know that the government does not have either the will or inclination to do it. Our old people, education, the armed forces, hospitals and emergency services have been held short of cash while, at the same time, there is no limit to the amount our governments will spend on immigrants, the EU and promoting political correctness in all its forms.

♦ All of the problems we face in Britain today arise from one cause. We, the British, are not represented in Parliament. However numerous organisations and secret societies have conspired to get their people elected as MPs. This has gone so far that we have lost control. Fabians, Communists, Masons, Bilderbergers, Bankers, Multi-National Companies, Zionists, Refugee Councils, Gay Rights activists, the UN, Race Relations Groups, Black Power and the IRA are all well represented in the House of Commons. There is no-one fighting the corner for the British – except the National Front. As things are going, the day cannot be far off when we become outnumbered by immigrants. It is clear for all to see how, for the last twenty and more years, we have been pushed around in our own country and sent to the back of the queue for everything. We must regain control of Parliament. All British men and women should immediately join the crusade to reclaim our rights.

♦ Yet more money has been squandered on unnecessary attacks on the part of the British military, guided by the UN. Not to mention the hundreds of casualties, and devastation of towns, cities, railways and oil installations. The British taxpayer is now expected to help pay for the rebuilding of Kosovo and other Balkan areas, although Yugoslavia itself (Serbia) is to be denied aid until its elected President Milosevic bows to N.A.T.O. and the West or is overthrown. The whole affair is scandalous, considering that the majority of the British public were against the bombing at the time.

♦ It is clearly not the British who run our country. Ex-EU official, Paul Van Buitenen, who was responsible for exposing large-scale EU fraud last year and brought down the entire Commission, has now claimed that many EU officials are Freemasons and that there is a strong link between the Eurocrats and Mafia bosses. It has been known for many years that Fabians, Marxists, Bilderbergers and Freemasons have collectively held the reins of power. However, the political significance of this has always been played down. Infiltration of the old parties has grown to such an extent that it is not safe to vote for any of them – Labour, Liberal or Conservative. For decades, aliens and communists have been organised by their wealthy backers to declare war on white, Christian civilisation.

♦ A constant stream of unwanted directives has been coming from the EU. It started with instructions to tear up our Kent apple orchards, through rules that have also decimated our fishing industry and farming community. Thousands of small businesses have been forced to close over barmy anti-British EU rules. Nor has the ordinary man in the street gone unscathed by the Eurocrats, not least by the cut they take out of his wages. Our government through deception have imposed this damaging legislation. To suggest, as successive governments have done for many years, that the orders from Brussels Bureaucrats have any direct power over the way we run our affairs is untrue. However, if the public does not wake up to the danger posed, and refuse point blank to conform to EU directives, the time will soon come when Parliament will be reduced to a powerless debating society.

♦ Like the EU, the UN also holds sway over our government. The picture conjured up of a UN assembly comprising delegates from each country pursuing an aim of peace is totally fraudulent. Who the hell are the delegates, and who selects them? The UN takes power and decision-making away from the British public in just the undemocratic way that the EU does.

THE ATTEMPTED KILLING-OFF OF ENGLAND

THE EUROCRATS have slyly removed England from the official EU map, claiming that it is now only part of the land-mass of the EU. New Labour and its insidious allies have done their best to obliterate England, the English and all that we stand for.

Abolishing St George's Day has been a prime aim of the left – contrast this with the jubilant celebrations on St Patrick's night. Note how Red Ken said that if elected to Mayor he would arrange spectacular St Patrick's Day events. We all remember how last year market traders and owners who flew the Cross of St. George were intimidated by petty council officials.

This year the National Front knew what the Establishment had planned and that it would do its utmost to prevent us from holding a St George's Day rally. We deliberately played into the hands of the Home Office to record their strategy. Their first move weeks before the event was to get the police aligned with the immigrants and communists. Slanted reports appeared in local newspapers, claiming that a small group of members peacefully celebrating St George's Day would create racial tension. (Small group because the police have recently insisted that if our public activities are to go ahead we must restrict our numbers to forty.) If it is the case that the English are to be forbidden to celebrate St George's Day for fear of upsetting foreigners, then we must conclude that we English have become subordinate to the invader. This would be intolerable. Or are we to believe that senior police officers are so gutless that they cannot control a simple St George's Day celebration? No. The truth is simply that the traitors who rule our country today do not want St George's Day celebrated, and this year we have proved it.

The attack on St George's Day comes from all left-wing sources. The Encyclopedia Britannica claimed the day before St George's Day that St George never came here from his native Palestine. So we were all expected to say "Ah well! Let's get rid of our flag and forget St George." What kind of fools do they think we are? Everybody knows that St George was not an Englishman. St George was executed in 304 AD for opposing persecution of Christians (something that we can identify with today.) The story of St George who slew the dragon in order to save the King's daughter is a story of heroism, where good triumphs over evil. He gave liberty to the Christians and in this we find our patron saint ideally suited to our present situation. St George was chosen because of his heroism rather than his nationality: this is true of most patron saints. In the next few years the English will rise and St George and his flag will terrify those traitors who have tried to destroy us.

EDITORIAL — Issue 12

IT HAS always been the aim of the National Front to bring to the nation's attention the dangers that lie hidden in the secret agenda of powerful political bodies. We have constantly strived to keep national decision making firmly in the hands of the British people. Adhering to these principles, we have continuously opposed Britain's entry into the EU and the programme of mass immigration. We also oppose the UN, NATO, the World Bank and the IMF interfering in our affairs.

We had hoped to keep British industry at the world-beating level that it was at when our party was first formed. Unfortunately, we have had to watch deliberate sabotage take place in our most important manufacturing industries. They have fallen victim to political underhandedness, communist sabotage and management mishandling. A National Front government would do its utmost to restore these manufacturing industries.

Taxes collected from the British worker should be used for his benefit. Priority should be given to the National Health Service, education and the emergency services. It is scandalous that elderly Britons often die for lack of medical attention because money has been squandered elsewhere. We must also remember that today's pensioners have contributed most and it is wrong that recently arrived immigrants should be given priority over them. Likewise, the old-age pension is a paltry sum when compared to the cost of asylum-seekers. We have, for example, the case of the Australian layabout who had never paid a penny in rent or rates who walked off with £100,000 because he had claimed possession of the house he was squatting in. This is a typical example of the contempt that those in authority have for the decent hard-working majority. This kind of thing would not happen under a National Front government.

GROUPS WHO HOLD THE REINS OF POWER

FABIANS: Found mainly within the Labour Party they exert a considerable influence. Fabian Harold Wilson wanted to hand Britain over to America. He claimed that Britain was "ungovernable."

COMMUNISTS: Usually claiming to be moderate socialists, they constantly chip away and undermine our society. They pay particular attention to brainwashing the young into accepting communist concepts. They hope that by destroying race, nation, religion etc, society will fall into leaderless anarchy. It is their intention, if that time should come, to seize control.

The MASONS: A secret society. Few of its members ever rise enough degrees around the circle to have any idea of who controls it or for what purpose. From time to time Masonic involvement in politics comes to light. Many Masons occupy senior positions in the police force, Home Office and Foreign Office, which is why they are at variance with public expectations.

ZIONISTS: Are to be found in all political parties as well as the news and entertainment industry. Zionists try to use British politics to their advantage. Many conflicts that we have entered into have been more in the Zionist interest than in the British interest. They have constantly encouraged immigrants into our country and have been chiefly responsible for the arrival of the Race Relations Acts.

OXFORD/CAMBRIDGE OLD SCHOOL TIE NETWORK: This elite has turned out a more than proportionally high number of communists. Many have achieved high positions as well as spawning several who spied for Russia.

REVOLUTIONARY GROUPS: These have little power but are used to galvanising young students to the communist cause. They also arrange violent street demonstrations so that Whitehall can simulate and learn tactics from the exercise. The revolutionary groups are just as much a part of the New Establishment as the Liberal Party. Revolutionary groups are also set loose like a pack of hounds on those people who challenge corruption: Enoch Powell, The National Front, Mary Whitehouse and Lady Birdwood have all had this treatment. The Reds are used as a barrier to protect the government.

COMBINED EFFORT: Often problems rising cannot be identified as the work of any one group, many individuals play their part. In fact this is most often the case. The notion of black rule in our former African colonies was first proposed by members of these listed organisations rather than by the blacks themselves. Marxists agitated, organised and armed the natives. They trained them in guerilla warfare. Blacks were then mobilised against whites purely in the interest of the one-worlders.

Lord Carrington —

of those seeking power used violence, intimidation and murder to suppress his opponents. He should have been arrested and thrown into jail. The Rhodesian government, led by Ian Smith, had been so undermined and over-ruled by our government that they were powerless to act. Rhodesia was now in a state of turmoil and the Labour government was making the situation worse. When Mrs Thatcher's so-called "right-wing" Tory Party came to power the problems were expected to be brought under control. Instead the Tories were non-committed and unconcerned. A one-time Chairman of the Bilderbergers, seized his opportunity, took control and arranged elections in Rhodesia and placed murderous marxist guerilla Mugabe in control. Everyone knew that these elections were unfair because of Mugabe's violent actions, yet the result was allowed.

We are now witnessing a repeat performance of Mugabe's violent behaviour against the white farmers and his political opponents. Once again our government is doing nothing.

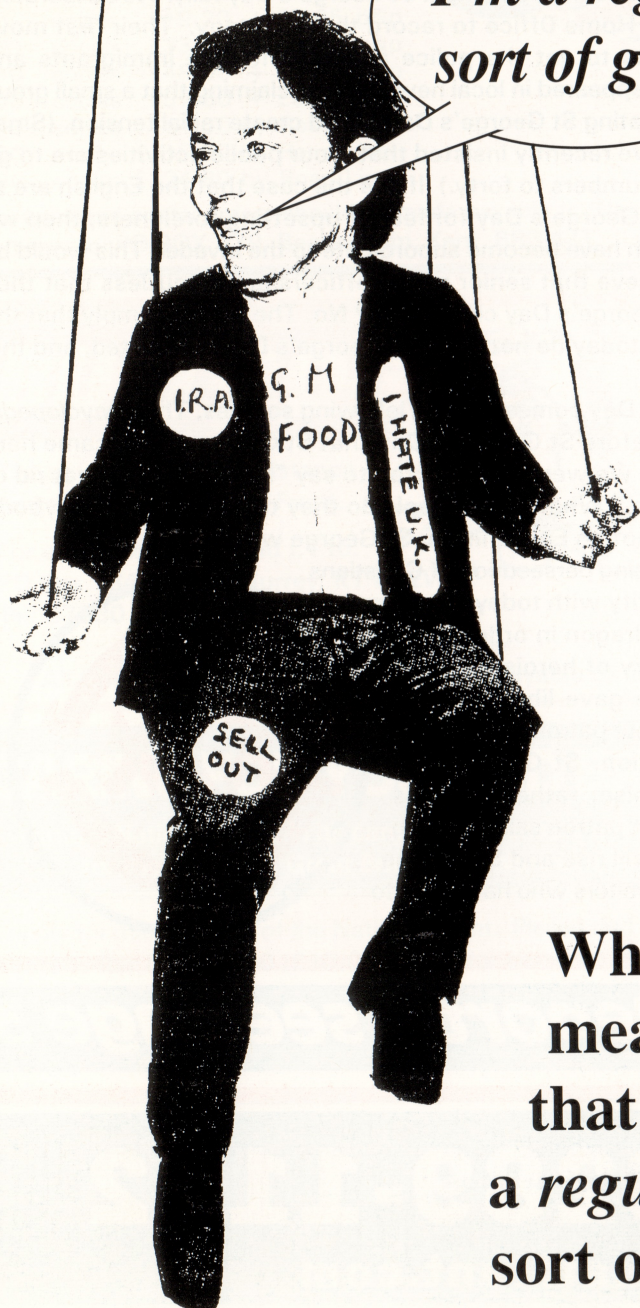

Similarly in South Africa liberals and communists had been working for some time creating unrest among the blacks. Henry Kissinger, capitalising on this groundwork, flew in and began to browbeat the white South African government into accepting black rule. Kissinger acted as though he controlled the American government, the United Nations and the black Marxist guerillas.

The communist concept that both Kissinger and Carrington applied to black rule was flawed. Majority rule was inappropriate. It was like saying, because children outnumber teachers in a school, the children should rule. Everyone knew the natives did not have the ability to run advanced countries such as these. The predictable breakdown of society in both South Africa and Zimbabwe, the hunger, disease and bloodshed that have ensued, are largely due to the actions of the Bilderbergers Carrington and Kissinger.

BILDERBERGERS: A self-appointed ruling elite. Here are two examples of Bilderberger intervention, of which we are still feeling the effects years later:

During the latter part of the 1970's Rhodesia had been posing a problem for the British government, due to multi-racial stirring. The Labour government had been acting in favour of the blacks, making the situation worse. It had been decided that elections should be held and the three black hopefuls had begun campaigning. Robert Mugabe, one

WHO RUNS THE LABOUR PARTY?

"Who Runs the Labour Party?" was a topic on Panorama, on the BBC. It concluded that their HQ at Millbank controlled the party: this told us nothing. A far more explicit and damning report could be found in the Sunday Times on the 6th February. It concerned Lord Levy. In 1994 Levy met Tony Blair at a dinner party thrown by Gideon Meyer, a senior Israeli diplomat. Blair entered the Labour leadership race soon afterwards. Levy took him under his wing and became his sponsor and "manager." Levy became a familiar figure in Blair's inner circle. It has been estimated that Levy raised as much as £40 million pounds for Blair, much of it channelled through a "blind trust" to disguise the identity of the donors. Much of the money came from political donations out of the Jewish Establishment. Because of Levy's persuasiveness he was able to make the claim "British Jewry has transferred its support to Labour" and "More than ever, Blair and New Labour represent values dear to Jews." Levy also raised money for the Israeli Labour Party which paid off when Barak was elected in 1999.

Blair was once a frequent visitor to Levy's house in Totteridge, where among other activities he used to play weekend tennis. Levy is now one of the few who regularly visit the Blairs at Chequers. The New Labour trio of Blair, Straw and Mandelson cannot pretend that they did not know who was financing them. The government seems to pander to their every whim of their paymasters, from moves to implement a diplomatic blockade against the new Austrian government, to introducing a holocaust day. The net effect of this funding has been to even further reduce the voice of the Christian English.

Lord Sainsbury is another who has pumped considerable amounts of money into New Labour. His aim to tie us into the single currency and his interest in G.M. crops give cause for concern when one remembers the old maxim "He who pays the piper calls the tune".

NF Conference 2000

During February we had a succesful and enjoyable AGM in Leicester. The people living in the area were friendly and there was no sign of the left-wing opposition.

Over 100 members attended from various parts of the country. Speeches were heard from Tom Holmes our Overseas Liason Officer and Terry Blackham the National Activities Organiser. There was a Friends of the Front report by Norman Tomkinson and Young National Front Organiser Simon Northfield told us of his recent activities and plans for the future. Eddy Morrison was selected to Chair the meeting, which he did admirably. Resolutions were debated in the usual manner. We reaffirmed our commitment to the repatriation of non-whites to their countries of ethnic origin. We debated the Ulster Peace Process. The general consensus of opinion was that it was a betrayal. We pledged support for clause 28 which forbids the promotion of homosexuality in schools. A resolution to oppose unwanted EU legislation was carried unanimously. Eddy Morrison gave a rousing final speech, which rounded off a perfect day.

The A.G.M. was followed up a few weeks later by a very constructive meeting of the various area leaders. Plans were discussed to make our party more effective.

Life under a Labour Government

Police Crisis

Due to Labour Government Home Office interference police morale is at an all-time low. Scotland Yard has its worst-ever recruitment crisis. The Metropolitan Police Training College in London can handle 210 recruits. In January 103 started their training. In February the number dropped dramatically to 58. As for March, the number is only 33.

The main problem has been the kicking the police have taken over the Stephen Lawrence case. Police officers are now frightened to arrest a black suspect in fear of a racist backlash problem from the Home Office. Needless to say street crime, since the beginning of the year, has rapidly got worse.

Metropolitan Police Officer Steve Hutt who was once a guard to Princess Diana and twice commended for bravery – an exceptional officer – has been ordered to resign by a disciplinary board for calling a suspected teenage thief a black b*. This despite a plea for leniency from the boy's mother, who recognises that Steve Hutt's resignation was totally out of order. Yet again the politically-correct lunatics seem to have had their way.

Afghan Hijack Fiasco.

When the Afghans eventually stepped off the aeroplane they had just hijacked you would have expected them to be arrested and sent straight back to where they had come from to stand trial.

Jack Straw said that he would send the lot packing. Well, it never happened that way, did it, and is it any wonder? Thousands of bogus asylum-seekers and crafty immigrants are making fortunes at our expense.

There has been the case of Fatima Ali who claimed housing benefit while sitting on more than £200,000 in her bank account. The bogus asylum-seeker received weekly handouts to pay rent for a detached house in Essex and two other addresses. This was a fraud: the money went into her husband's bank account which rose to £500,000. She was eventually convicted of defrauding the DSS and was jailed for 18 months. When she finishes her sentence she should be deported – but don't hold your breath.

Drug abuse, which came in with the multi-racial society, is worse in England and Wales than in any other part of Europe. Cannabis and LSD use in Britain is ten times higher than in some other countries in Europe. Glue-sniffing is still a serious problem – it is believed that a fifth of 15 - 16 year olds have tried it. We note that in terrible Austria, a country that is beyond this pale, glue-sniffing is unheard of. Maybe this accounts for their minds being clear enough to vote the right way.

Asylum Seekers

In February Home Secretary Jack Straw faced more controversy when three asylum-seekers were found working at the governments immigration HQ. One of the men, an Algerian, had earlier been arrested by the immigration Office in Croydon. The Home Office, not embarrassed by the situation, waffled – “We need to recruit large numbers of new staff and because of the very long timescale for doing security clearances there were people employed on a conditional basis. It was a calculated risk.”

Surely those working in the immigration department should be security checked and be proper British citizens. There must be hundreds of Englishmen willing to do the job working in this government department. It is secure, well paid and probably includes a pension. No doubt an Englishman would be considered too thorough. Where was this job advertised, we wonder? On the French side of the Eurotunnel?

Criminal Activity

South Africa was the politically-correct choice for the 2006 World Cup. Unfortunately, Mandela's black African state is now so corrupt, violent and full of criminal activity that FIFA chiefs have been frightened away from staging it there. South Africa, once one of the most advanced, civilised, prosperous and beautiful lands in the world, has now reached the climax of left-wing Utopia that only Blair and Harold Wilson could have dreamed of. A multi-racial cesspit where the incapable are in charge and the white man is constantly under attack because of the colour of his skin.

Mugabe in Rhodesia (Zimbabwe), a tyrant set in place by Lord Carrington of the infamous Bilder-berger Group, is now wanting to force the remaining white farmers off their land. Sounds racist, but we have heard no sabre rattling from our anti-racist government. The question is: if the white farmers are forced off of their land who is going to produce food for the people living there – both black and white? The black man won't. He does such things as eat the seed crop and has nothing to plant in the spring. Of course any white Rhodesian wanting to settle in Britain will be refused entry. This question arose many years ago when Shridath Ramphal who was acting head of the Commonwealth at the time said that white Rhodesians would not be allowed into Britain. He then went on to say that it was only right that the Ugandan and Kenyan Asians waiting to get in should have their entries speeded up, so they could be re-united with their families. This prompted Enoch Powell to make the remark that, “they could as easily be re-united in the opposite direction”. The other obvious question was: why should Shridath Ramphal, an Asian, decide who was going to enter Britain.

Double Standards

March 21st: A teacher was suspended after saying that he did not want his son to go to the school where he worked, where the boy would be in a white minority. The school in question is Denbigh High in Luton, Bedfordshire, where 92% of the pupils are Asian.

While the schoolmaster in Luton was being suspended for saying that he wanted his boy to go to a predominantly white school, Rabbi Benjamin Rabinowitz was saying the same about his children. The rabbi was in the Hendon and Finchley Press that he moved to North London so that he could be in a close-knit Jewish area. “I wanted to have a good Jewish area for my children to grow up in.” He went on, “Most people move here for the same reason. You can get good Kosher food and there are lots of Jewish schools available.” Rabbi Rabinowitz says that he is an outspoken man, unafraid of controversy, “Some people do say I do involve myself in politics as I do believe in a strong Israel. Judaism is losing faith and often people follow a religion of tradition without faith.” He goes on, “There is less intermarriage, one in three people are marrying out of the faith.”

Why is it that the rabbi can speak so freely of the advantage of Jewish schools, where his children can be with their own kind?

The rabbi's statement was in a local newspaper read by thousands. Yet it is the schoolmaster who has been suspended, humiliated, intimidated and could probably lose his job. On the other hand, the rabbi can sleep soundly in his bed, knowing that there will be no knock on his door in the early hours of the morning.

Dawn Raids

In the same Borough that the rabbi lives in, dawn raids were carried out on so-called racist suspects. One 69-year-old pensioner, still in his pyjamas, was terrified when two burly policemen confronted him on his doorstep. They grilled him over alleged racist letters and took away paper, examples of his handwriting and DNA samples. Forty police officers took part in these raids. Four arrests were made before 9am. and more were expected. (It cannot be difficult in our socialist police state to find racist suspects, considering you can be found guilty without even being aware that you have committed a so-called crime.) No doubt those subjected to these dawn raids were more in fear and more traumatised by the ordeal than the so called victims of their racism. Englishmen today in many areas have become the hounded minority and see how the multiracialists take pleasure in it.

It should never happen

Surprising how the police force can be mobilised on political correctness issues, but there is no manpower for serious crime committed by immigrants. African born Rashid Musa received five life sentences at Snaresbrook Crown Court last August after he was found guilty of raping a 46 year-old woman in a London hospital and a schoolboy in the lavatory of an Eastbourne to Victoria train in 1998. Home Secretary Jack Straw claims that he had ordered Musa's deportation following his release from an earlier jail sentence for the serious sexual assault of a 15 year old girl. The deportation never took place. Home Office officials said they had “insufficient resources” to arrest him even though they knew where he lived.

Musa described by psychiatrists as a psychopath was said to have got a “buzz” from his victims' screams. He has been in Britain since 1992 and was allowed exceptional leave to remain here until 1994. Despite his terrible crimes he is still here. His latest victim has not recovered from her ordeal and is suffering serious stress-related illness. She has also made two suicide attempts since the rape. The victim is now suing the Home Office for failing to deport the crazed and violent bogus asylum

London Low Life

Labour's Frank Dobson and Tory Steven Norris have both urged police to turn a blind eye to the capitals gays and lesbians. They've said that police should not put resources into such a “victimless crime”. Their views have provoked public fury. Mr Dobson said “If the police are wasting their time roaming around public lavatories or raiding clubs, they ought to have something better to do.” Mr Norris agreed that the police should not prosecute and also called for a change in the law to treat homophobic attacks in the same way as a race crime. Asked if that meant that the police should turn a blind eye to gay cruising and discreet public sex, both men said it should. Ken Livingstone said that if elected he would use the Mayor's £3.5 billion budget to try and end anti-gay discrimination. Some days later he added that if elected he would offer gay marriages. Why do so many accept this totally unnecessary imposition of London Mayor, especially when there is not one single satisfactory candidate?

Just before Christmas a boy of two was taken from his foster mum and dad, and placed in the care of two homosexual men. Left-wing Lewisham Council took this outrageous step because they said that he had been sharing a bedroom with another child, which is against their fostering policy. But leaving the child at the mercy of two sexual deviants it seems okay.

Anti-Marriage

Jack Straw, much unpopular over the asylum issue, decided to put the knife into the institution of marriage by dismissing its importance to family life. The Home Secretary's Department wasted a further £2 million of taxpayers' money creating a quango to study parenting. The quango ran into trouble when it introduced itself with a poll finding that only one-in-five people believe in marriage. It was a conclusion arrived at by controversial means and publicised despite overwhelming evidence to the contrary. Straw chose to denigrate the value of marriage to families and made the contentious claim that cohabiting couples and single mothers have always had a prominent role.

The Home Secretary said the Government could not moralise over family life.

“Most people would would run a mile if they thought that institutions like this were in the pulpit trying to teach them how to lead their lives.” It was up to individuals to develop their own ethics. No it is not. The Government, like parents, teachers and clergy, are expected to promote what is good and decent in society.

How can Straw reconcile this statement when Labour's politically-correct thought Police relentlessly hound anyone who does not think as they prescribe?

Socialist control of the young

CHERIE BLAIR wrote a very illuminating article in a recent edition of the Labour Party members magazine. The Prime Minister's wife said that she had been recruited into the Young Socialists by a teacher at her school, a certain Mrs Speight. We expect teachers to be trustworthy and to give lessons without political indoctrination. There is evidence that some Communist teachers joined the teaching profession merely to advance left-wing views.

The Young Socialists which Cherie Blair joined were closely associated to many revolutionary groups. The Young Socialists, together with others, such as the International Socialists, Trotskyites and the Young Socialists' League, often used street violence to make the headlines. (Note how the word "Socialist" is used instead of Communist). The Socialists often targeted naive young children. In the Winter of 1968-69 one leaflet addressed to school children was published by the Young Socialists' League. The leaflet began "Join in solidarity with young people in Vietnam, Ireland, Spain, Mexico, Czechoslovakia, and all over the world in their fight against imperialism." It was at this time that the extreme left, including members of the Labour Party, forged close links with the IRA. The Socialist Workers Party ran a group known as the "Party's Teachers Faction".

The Youth Organiser of the SWP suggested bringing youngsters into his party via the Anti-Nazi-League, using pop music as an enticement. The sixties and seventies would have been the era of the Blairs' indoctrination into left-wing politics. Mrs Blair attended for some time the London School of Economics which was recognised at the time as being a hotbed of communist subversion. Their banners were always in evidence during violent demonstrations. Little has changed with the tactics of the street mobs of the left. Except that many of the former street revolutionaries are now occupying positions within the Home Office, Foreign Office, Government, newspapers and news media. These revolutionaries have found a far more effective way of bringing about the revolution.

Recently Ken Livingstone a prominent Labour M.P. admitted that on top of his IRA sympathies, he would scrap the pound and be happy for Britain to be run by Brussels. The left are happy tearing down our institutions. However they never explain their alternative. Is this because they have no idea, or that if they told us we would say no?

COMMUNIST ATTACK ON BRITAIN

On May Day, an important day in the Communist calendar, a well-organised attack took place in Central London. Thousands of left-wing anarchists moved into Whitehall. The plan had been advertised on the Internet. The whole scheme seems to have been carefully rehearsed so that each group knew what to target.

The police and Home Office knew beforehand what to expect, but no steps were taken to prevent the thugs from assembling. Firstly the anarchists began snorting cocaine right in front of the police - no action was taken.

Demonstrators then began desecrating the Cenotaph and the statue of Sir Winston Churchill. A mobile phone shop was smashed up and also a Branch of Ryman's the Stationers where stock was stolen.

Members of the public caught up in the frenzy were terrified when a MacDonalds bar was destroyed. Twelve civilians were injured during the riots and numerous cars damaged. Every car on Waterloo Bridge had windows shattered. The police were under orders not to come down hard on the yobs carrying out these attacks because we are told they did not want to start a riot. (It seemed a riot was already in progress.) Bricks, bottles, iron bars, scaffold poles and various missiles were hurled at the police. At least twelve officers were injured. As well as the trouble in Whitehall skirmishes broke out in Charing Cross Road and on Lambeth Bridge. Fires were lit in the streets and shops in the Strand were looted.

The Cenotaph and the statue of Churchill are two of our nation's most sacred monuments. They are therefore a prime target for our nation's enemies. It is obvious that the Labour Party which detests our past, our culture, our traditions and our way of life, cannot be trusted to defend what is ours. Behind the smarmy public statements about how disgraceful this is, we know they are really congratulating their Marxist yob friends on the audacious attacks.

Ken Livingstone has been accused of backing these demonstrations in his bid for what he calls direct action. Livingstone does appear to have a close affinity to those involved. We must not forget that Livingstone has been a prominent Labour MP for many years. He has had full backing from Labour's National Executive. There is very little difference between Red Ken's view of politics and that of many other senior members of the Labour Party.

Paul Dobson from left-wing Ruskin College and Eton student Mathew McDonald were arrested for their part in the violent demonstrations. McDonald's parents, a university professor and a child lecturer, appear to hold the same anti-social views as their son. There is an urgent need to remove communist lecturers from public positions. It is insane that we allow subversives free access to the minds of our inexperienced and often gullible young. In Christianity the greatest wrong is to corrupt the little children - but then of course Communism is anti-Christian.

We in the National Front have had first-hand experience on numerous occasions of how the police have prevented us from assembling when they did not want our event to take place. Tactics could have been employed to prevent the May Day outrage. To be fair to the police, we have always allowed ourselves to be policed whereas left-wingers never have. Throughout the country there has over the years developed a system of policing by consent. Those who refuse to be policed get away with murder. In contrast, those who do abide by the law are penalised for it and often find themselves harassed for trivial offences. This is an intolerable situation that has to be remedied.

National Front protests in Margate

ON April 8th the National Front paraded through Margate carrying the message "NO MORE ASYLUM SEEKERS". We received a warm welcome from the Margate residents who are fed up with the injustice, crime and drain on local resources. Many locals joined with us on our procession and we gave away leaflets that were produced specially, they drew attention to the plight of our people around the asylum-seeker arrival points. Life has become intolerable due to Labour's open-door policy. We gained many new supporters and an enjoyable day was had by all of those who took part.

IMMIGRATION UNFAIR TO WHITES

THE Home Office does seem to operate a colour bar. Not, as usually suggested against blacks, but more often against whites. We have come across numerous instances of whites being denied citizenship. This is particularly common from among people who were originally of British stock returning from the colonies. South Africans, Canadians and those returning from what was Rhodesia are often turned away.

It is common knowledge that young women coming from the far East often use a temporary marriage of convenience to secure their stay. However when whites have better credentials for staying, they are often refused.

In the Spring of 1998 while Jack Straw was giving an amnesty to 55,000 illegal immigrants, New Zealander Anne Markie was told by immigration officials that she would have to leave Britain. Anne came from New Zealand with her English husband thirty-one years earlier. They could not afford the fare so sailor Terry got his wife to stow away on his ship. They were found out and fined in a Magistrates Court and Anne was given permission to stay.

She went on holiday and when she returned she was told by immigration officials that she could not remain in Britain and would have to return to New Zealand. This after she was married to an Englishman, had lived here for 31 years and received the blessing of the Home Secretary at the time. There was no demonstration by the Labour Party, and their rent-a-mob friends of the extreme left about the injustice, as there would have been had Anne been black.

Jon Riser came to England in 1977 as an 11 year old, when his English mother divorced her American husband. He went to school in Ivybridge, Devon. In 1986 he went back to America to join the Army. Three years ago he returned on his US passport and met Karen Jenkins. They fell in love and planned to marry. Last year he was told that his application to stay had been refused and he had to leave the country. Jon and Karen planned their wedding. Jon flew in but was refused entry and put on the next plane back to America. A week after he returned he shot himself. He was found dead with a note beside him which said "This is my wedding day."

Here was a clear case of someone that should have been allowed to stay. His mother is English. He had lived in England since a child and he was going to marry an English girl. Jon's mum Jean said, "He was such a happy sunny person."

Maybe if he was a refugee he might have stood a better chance of getting in.

AROUND THE COUNTRY

Leicestershire: 600 asylum-seekers are being housed in Leicestershire, 448 are living in the city and a further 152 have been placed across the county. Another 250 homes are to be made available to them as part of a government plan to disperse asylum-seekers everywhere in a bid to hide them. As well as Leicester, Derby, Nottingham and Northampton have been told to prepare for them. Before the asylum-seekers arrived, Leicester already had an enormous Asian population, catered for by leftwing Labour MPs. Nelson Mandela Park in the city centre is a clear indication of this.

Hertfordshire: Police have confirmed that the crime level has dropped dramatically since travellers have left the area. The police have realised that when these groups arrive crime goes up, and when they leave crime goes down. Perhaps it can now be recognised that home owners need to protect themselves from the thieving, vandalism and other crime carried out by travellers.

Staff at Herts social services have set up a new department to cope with the "large burden" put on them by the growing number of asylum seekers. Herts County Council has had to endure a five-fold increase in just one year. 783 have arrived recently and these are only the ones that the authorities are aware of.

Thanet: A Czech asylum-seeker, Aladar Gujda, cheated the DS. out of £4,000. He was jailed for a year after he admitted four charges of deception. He asked magistrates to consider a further 32 counts of using his brother's benefit book to get cash after the brother had returned home. One may ask why he could not return home as well.

Refugees have been living in rooms in the luxury Cliftonville Hotel. Refurbished by Thanet Council using taxpayers money, £42,000 was given to hoteliers Mohammed and Shanidi Saleeman for the refurbishment. Thanet Council said the grant was given to improve tourist facilities in Thanet. By taking in refugees the terms of the agreement have been broken. The hotel has recently been sold to a Mr Ashok Gadher who runs it as a bed and breakfast home for refugees. He claims that he knows nothing of what happened before he took over.

Thanet Labour councillor Tony Ovendon, an Anti-Nazi League supporter was arrested along with three other left-wing demonstrators when violent scuffles broke out in Margate. The four clashed with police and were arrested on public order offences. This occurred when they tried to prevent the National Front from holding its rally. The others arrested were Gordon Lee, 33, from London, Simon Taylor, 27, from London and Anna-Maria Yasin of no fixed address.

People waiting for council houses in Thanet could be pushed further down the list, with homes being allocated to refugees. North Thanet MP Roger Gale says the Home Office wants to force local authorities to put 40 per cent of refugees in council houses, with the remaining 60 per cent living in private rented accommodation. Mr Gale slammed the plan and asked where councils would find the extra houses.

Just to rub salt into the wound, while refugees and asylum-seekers are having their rent paid, Thanet Council have ordered a debt warning to council tenants. It states that tenants who don't pay their rent will face bailiffs in a new trial scheme. Any costs incurred will be added to the debtors' bill. It does not say how long one would be in arrears before the bailiffs arrive. It is obviously one way of emptying the houses for the asylum-seekers.

Birmingham: Algerian asylum-seeker Mohamed Kenewa, who arrived here with two wives and fifteen children is getting £617 per week to house his family in two fully-furnished four-bedroom council houses. The Algerian government claimed he was sentenced to four years in jail in 1992 for an attack on one of its army bases in which four soldiers died - but said he fled the country by the time the sentence was passed.

There are so many incidents being reported in Birmingham that it is difficult keeping up with them. It is expected that the Birmingham taxpayer will have to pay an extra £1.7 million this year to meet the cost of asylum-seekers. As a result of cost cutting, the number of police officers has been reduced. The money could have been used to employ an extra 51 new policemen, which the city desperately needs. This lunatic behaviour has come about because Parliament very foolishly abides by a 1951 UN convention relating to the status of refugees to allow asylum-seekers into our country. This damn-fool rule needs to be repudiated. A National Front government would pay no attention to an outdated UN convention which is wrecking our country.

Norfolk: Kings Lynn is one of the latest in a number of towns to receive asylum-seekers. Also nearby, 600 refugees have been housed in Oakington barracks.

Last October Yarmouth began to accept asylum-seekers. Greenacres Primary School in Yarmouth has children from Somalia, Russia, Lithuania, Angola, Kosovo, Afghanistan, Yugoslavia and Poland. This is an appalling state of affairs - not one of these countries has any link to Britain. The Headteacher of the school, smiling, seems oblivious to the problems that are being heaped upon us. Talk about fiddling while Rome burns.

London: London is, "full of asylum-seekers and cannot afford to support the tens of thousands already living in the city" council chiefs warned Jack Straw. (Daily Mail, April 13th 2000). London councils have a £30 million deficit from supporting 61,000 would-be refugees. They are asking for extra cash to safeguard essential services.

The term "asylum-seeker" seems to have changed its meaning since traitors have taken over Westminster. It used to mean "My life is in danger in my own country. Can I take up temporary refuge in yours?" It now means "I want to come to your country to get free all the benefits that the British have worked for over decades."

A Turkish asylum-seeker was jailed for life for the vicious rapes of three women. Sotiris Mehmet throttled the girls senseless before having sex and then left them for dead. Mehmet who came to Britain from Cyprus in 1994 scoured the streets of North London to find his lone victims. How can we expect to live in a civilised country when we allow the low life, criminals and scum of the earth to settle here.

Ken Livingstone, a fierce I.R.A. supporter, immigrant encourager, gay activist and someone who would sell us out to Brussels, has been elected Mayor of London. Presumably by members of the four groups listed. He did not bother to address his campaign to the majority of ordinary Londoners. An almost total disinterest on the part of the masses allowed Livingstone to get elected on a very low turn out. Londoners do not seem to realise the harm that has been done by electing a high profile communist as Mayor. Normally Communist candidates get around .01% of the vote. Allowing Livingstone to get elected has not only given Red Ken an enormous amount of power, it has also given the impression to Communists that the public has been won over to their cause. As a direct result we have seen Communist street action trashing the very core symbols of British nationhood, our most highly treasured monuments, the Cenotaph and statue of Sir Winston. Having got away with this they have now turned their attention to the Queen, the Royal Family and the monarchy as a whole. What dark alien forces have been unleashed due to public apathy?

Dear Sir,

There is no doubt that the British government could have done more to relieve the drowning in Madagascar. Sure, the black African states did little or nothing to help, that is expected. Apart from having tribal conflicts, criticising the white man and handing around the begging bowl, they seem to do little else. Fortunately the South Africans came to their assistance, there is obviously still a vestige of white man's influence there.

For all the Labour rhetoric of helping our black brothers, it was clear that they were reluctant to help at all. The British and American governments were quick enough off the mark when it came to bombing white Christians in Yugoslavia and handing Kosovo over to marauding Muslim Albanians. Clearly for New Labour killing white Europeans was more important than saving blacks in Africa.

Let us not forget either the severe pollution created by NATO forces in Kosovo, including the enormous clouds of poisonous fumes from the burning oil installations. There was also the question of the contamination of radium. A large area of Europe was contaminated, the Danube has been severely affected. This is something to reflect on when New Labour offers the excuse that £4.00 per gallon petrol is necessary in order to keep the environment clean.

J Hayes, Chesire.

Dear Sir,

The state of this country's universities is a worrying one; more and more students join every year, many taking up increasingly ridiculous degrees - David Beckham and Klingon studies to name but two, and the rest doing virtually nothing but lounge around drinking.

However what is even more sickening is the way our universities have been overrun by communist and so-called 'socialist' movements - movements made up of disillusioned middle-class kids rebelling against their parents, losers with no one else to turn to and mindless hippie do-gooders. Having been a Leeds student for three years and a member of the National Front since the age of 15 I have had first hand experience of this sickening way.

In the past the University has been plastered with Socialist Worker posters. The annual general meetings have been dominated by their political agendas and all in all they have made it very difficult for anyone to express their opinions if they are not an out-and-out Marxist. Things however have unexpectedly improved this year and this is due in no small part to the University's 'Free Speech Society'. At this year's General Meeting things came to a head. The SWP along with ANL had proposed a motion to expel two students for being members of the BNP; this obviously worried me considerably. At one time this kind of motion would have sailed through with little or no opposition. However things went a little differently than expected. Lucy Bagnell, a member of SWP, proposed the motion. She said, "The BNP are committed to a race war. Allowing them to exist in campus compromises the rights of Jews, lesbians, gays, Blacks and Asians. The union should take a stance against this organisation."

Then the question was posed "Who would like to speak against the motion?" silence swept across the room, and then one man rose to his feet and delivered a stunning attack against both the S.W.P., whom he claimed had broken the harassment policy, and Searchlight Magazine whom he belittled and claimed were a joke. As he returned to his seat the applause was astounding. After that the SWP's arguments crumbled and their motion fell apart and was defeated by a clear majority and they were shown up as the pathetic spineless rabble that they are.

So it looks as though maybe the reds don't have the grip on our nations youth as we once thought and if Nationalism is becoming accepted in these former socialist strongholds the message for the SWP is clear: Nationalism is here to stay so accept it or get out.

Dear Sir,

This boy shown standing with his Union Jack during the 1945 victory celebrations was featured not long ago in a Bedfordshire newspaper. Could he have realised that a day would come when it would be an offence to display the national flag in certain parts of his own country? And could his father have been one of those who fought, and possibly died, in defence of the freedoms now being denied us?

D. G., Bedfordshire

Dear Sir,

I have been to several art and craft fairs recently and was amazed at the brilliant quality of the work of many of our current artists. The best of these are what should be on exhibition in our London art galleries, rather than the old beds, boxes of manure and piles of bricks.

British art is being deliberately denigrated by showing artless rubbish instead of our best works. No doubt this is to imply that the British no longer have great talent, or at least to prevent us from seeing them. We have hundreds of brilliant contemporary artists, all struggling for survival. It is criminal that one has to go to a craft fair to see works of genius, while no-hopers are carrying off the Turner and other coveted prizes, along with enormous pay cheques.

T Sutcliffe, Wiltshire

Dear Sir,

The so-called anti-racists have a fixation on race to the point of insanity. This can be seen in their determined efforts to ban the word blackboard, in their insistence that the nursery rhyme Baa Baa Black Sheep be banned. Also in instances like that of the old lady who had her china pigs confiscated. The left-wingers, comprising among others Communists, Fabians, Marxists, Anarchists and Freemasons, have a fanaticism about race. The results of their efforts are always at the cost of the white man. Race has become a political weapon. Race is something in this country that should not have any political significance. We did not have a race problem until the left created one. Introducing this race problem has been no mean effort, countless billions of pounds and endless man-hours have been spent in order to facilitate this programme. A programme paid for in the main by the hardworking British public. A programme that they did not even know had been conceived.

British patriots and the long-suffering British public are branded racists as soon as they complain about problems caused by immigrants. Problems that would not have arisen if the foreigners had not come here. Generally, when someone or somebody does something that affects the public in a detrimental way, or if they carry out acts which others find offensive and distressing, such people are deemed anti-social. Why in the single case of the multi-racialists is the position reversed. Why are the perpetrators the innocent and the victims the guilty?

Great Day in Scotland

A contingent of NF members went up to Dundee by invitation of our Scottish Branch. It was pleasing to see how the Scots still support the Union. A great day was had by all and it was rounded off by going to see Nemesis and Stigger perform patriotic ballads.

When the first West Indians arrived here during the 1950's, some Londoners took to the streets to protest. They were given severe sentences for doing very little. This was a vital battle for the multi-racialists to win. For although it was presented to the British public as just a few West Indian arrivals and nothing to make a fuss about, it was in fact the start of a plan to bring about the genocide of the white British nation and further the cause of a communist revolution. Those demonstrating in Notting Hill knew this. The fact that the Home Office was allowed to get away with giving severe sentences for complaining, wrong-footed opponents of multi-racialism from the start. The one-worlders have been able to use public sympathy, naivety and general ignorance of their plan to keep things going in the multi-racial direction. This has now reached a level where there can be no-one in this country who is not suffering from the consequences of mass immigration.

The public DOES have power. Buying power, voting power, power through lobbying and demonstrating, the power of public opinion. The politicians in the fear of losing their jobs are at our mercy. Let us say loud and clear NO! to immigration, NO! to the EU.

POLICIES FOR A FREE BRITAIN

Put British people first— end the lunacy of "positive discrimination"

Halt communist subversion in our schools, colleges and mass media.

Maintain and improve an entirely free National Health Service. Abolish prescription charges - we do not believe in charging people when they are ill and likely to be losing money anyway.

Stop all unnecessary imports now! We want British goods made in British factories providing jobs for British workers.

Invest all money in our own industries, not abroad. Support private enterprise, give workers real incentives by tax cuts and profit sharing.

Get Britain out of the European Community. British people should determine their own future.

Crack down on muggers and all violent crime. Bring back the death penalty for murderers and terrorists.

Help young families by increasing family allowances and by measures such as free school meals for all.

Stop all immigration NOW. Use foreign aid money to fund a programme of phased, human repatriation for non-Europeans.

A return to healthy moral values, thereby strengthening the family and the community.

The ultimate defeat of IRA terrorism and firm support for the Loyalist majority in Northern Ireland. Also, to terminate the Anglo-Irish agreement (this was only entered into under American pressure) as the so called "peace process" is, in reality, nothing more than a hidden agenda for the gradual surrender of the whole of Ulster.

An alternative defence strategy that would include closing all foreign military bases on British soil and not becoming involved in overseas wars that were no threat to British interests - such as the conflict in the former Yugoslavia. But at the same time, strengthen our armed forces and adopting a position of armed neutrality.

Creating a healthy environment for a healthy people by employing firm measures against pollution, protecting our countryside against the spread of urbanisation and ending the architectural disfigurement of our towns and cities.

Regenerating farming in Great Britain with the objective of achieving maximum self sufficiency in food production. Also, restoring the fishing industry and protecting our traditional fishing grounds - and not tolerating European or any other foreign interference.

The Monarchy Great Britain has been a Christian kingdom for a thousand years, and no matter what others may say, we should be unashamedly proud of everything it stands for. As long as whoever succeeds the present Queen, whom we hope will reign for many more years to come, continues to defend the true Christian faith, and none other, we will always be first and foremost for the Monarchy which we see as being central to the stability of our society. But should whoever becomes the next Sovereign break with this covenant we would have no hesitation in calling for his or her replacement.

This brief outline of our policies should show how we stand regarding some of the serious and worsening social problems facing us today. And, in many respects, we believe our views to coincide with those of the silent majority. Therefore, even if you find yourself agreeing only with some, if not all, of our policies you are a supporter of the National Front - even if you do not think so.
